that represent neo-brides, at the forthcoming edition of Couture Week here. "Our couture collection 2014 - Portraits - Making Moments Timeless - is inspired by vintage motifs, moments and the beauty of architectural simplicity," the designer said. "The collection represents the neo-bride that enjoys traditions in today's modern world making every moment of hers timeless. Portraying a new world of old world that reflects colours, timeless classics and an interesting amalgamation of traditional and modern elements," he added.

Summary | Manish Malhotra at the closing show of Delhi couture week last year. "Let's not forget that a grand finale is controlled by the title sponsor, in this case Lakme, which has a say in the choice of the designer," says Dhankar of LFW. "The sponsors wanted to project a glossy bridal trend as the look of this season and Manish Malhotra is the best person for that," he explains, adding that the finale is not just a fashion show but is a benchmark of production, entertainment and creativity of a fashion week.
